THE LEMON GROVE REVIEW

Arm wrestlers training camp set to open

by Joe Naiman

More than 100 would be champion arm wrestlers will converge on the New Life Orthodox Presbyterian Church in La Mesa on Sept. 4 - 5 for the annual arm wrestling training camp.

The camp was held in Spring Valley last year, but was moved to the Lake Murray location to provide more room.

Organizers Carolyn Fisher and her husband, Allen, will again be hosting the training camp at the behest of the San Diego Arm Pullers Association.

"Our main reason for having it is to promote the sport," she said.

The camp will also provide a clinic involving teaching techniques.

The first night, a seminar called "How to train your body for arm wrestling" will be taught by Jack Medina, a former strength and conditioning coach for the Oakland/Los Angeles Raiders, St. Louis/Los Angeles Rams, Seattle Seahawks and Golden State Warriors.

The Saturday session runs from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. and will include round-robin table practice.

Last year, the couple provided only 10 days notice for a clinic held on their driveway in Spring Valley, where they have lived for the past nine years, and still drew 30 participants.

"My husband really likes to promote the sport and help the arm wrestlers out," said Carolyn on the reason for starting the training camp.

Between them, the Fishers have won over 25 titles. They were married in 1984 after meeting at the 1982 national tournament in Reno.

There are actually two major arm wrestling organizations, said Fisher: one on the West Coast and one which represents the East Coast.

This year, the East Coast tournament was held last month in Omaha while the West Coast tournament was held in Lake Tahoe.

Carolyn Fisher became the first woman to win titles in both organizations, giving her the undisputed title.

Her husband, who was born and raised in Los Angeles, has been arm wrestling since 1979.

Carolyn, who was born in Toronto and raised in Ontario, about 20 minutes from Banff, had been in gymnastics since the age of eight.

When selections were being made for the 1980 Canadian national tournament in British Columbia, she was asked to participate.

Her third tournament

Carolyn and Allen Fisher get in a little extra practice as they prepare for their annual arm wrestling camp and clinic scheduled for early September. The camp was held last year in Spring Valley, but was moved to La Mesa for more space. Carolyn Fisher holds the East and West U.S. championships.

was the world championship, in which she finished third, and the following year she finished second in the world championship.

The two moved to the San Diego area 13 years ago, settling in the College Area before moving to Spring Valley.

"I thought I was a beach person. I'm not. All the sand in your chips when you're eating, I can't do it," she said.

The training camp next month may even see a visit from Howie Mandell's show, since the host has expressed an interest in coming out to see it.

A $50 fee covers the Friday and Saturday sessions as well as lunch Saturday.

PG Perspectives

PG on Y2K

by Phillip Giannangeli

Watch out! It's that Y2K virus. It could wreck your neighborhood, leave your health in shambles, and mangle every document, record, or contract you have. Y2K has the potential to make all other disaster tales pale in comparison.

The Y2K virus, in case you're wondering, is the term given to the epidemic that is supposed to happen when the clock, at 11:59 p.m. on Dec. 31, 1999 moves forward and sounds its next tick. The sound of that one tick, we are told, will be heard throughout the universe and as it sends us into a new millennium, a new century and a new year, it will do so with a real bang. The year, of course, will end in double zero. And that's the petri dish for this particular virus. 2000 is a year, according to experts, that computers will not be able to recognize and not knowing what else to do, they will simply revert to the year 1900. It's a flaw deep within computer genes (codes) and like undesirable recessive traits in humans that come to the fore and raise eyebrows, this one is expected to cause us a lot of grief.

And computers are supposed to be so damn smart.

Discussion of the millennium bug, as some have dubbed it, is beginning to make the rounds. We're now reading more about it, hearing stories of its expected horror, and I'm pretty sure that soon enough we will be treated to a movie of the week about it — one on each of the networks and half a dozen or so on cable channels. I can't believe that Hollywood would pass up this opportunity without putting out a huge blockbuster during the summer of '99.

Just what is going to happen on Jan. 1, 2000 is speculative. And even though I'm not comfortable with speculation (I'm more than ever convinced that Trent Lott's hair is going to break into little plastic chunks, so I don't consider that speculative), let me jump right in there with the rest of the gang of speculators.

Big time speculators are worried about the FAA and flying on Jan. 1, 2000 because of the extensive use of computers in every aspect of flying. Some see planes dropping from the sky like rocks. Others see wing-benders at every airport in the world. My guess is that planes will continue to stay in the sky, but because of the Y2K glitch they won't be able to serve the gourmet meals and superb snacks they normally do. I'm also speculating (a lower form of speculation) that fewer pieces of luggage will be lost on Jan. 1, 2000 because the airlines will have to be more careful with baggage and won't be able to lay the blame onto their computers as they've done in the past.

Banks and other sleazy financial institutions are worried about Y2K too. They worry because if people take out their money before the millennium bug bites, but leave their loans and other obligations alone, things could get more screwed up than they usually do. Imagine a situation where the bank's computers go down when the bank, rather than you, wants and needs data. They might even get so messed up they won't be able to keep up with all of those extra charges they've been instituting every three months or so. There's the possibility we might get to talk with a real live person instead of some computer generated phone voice in January 2000. Perhaps, we could even go one on one with a human being instead of some soulless machine?

Other government and financial agencies are concerned, too, and are working to figure out what to do. Only the Post Office isn't concerned. Computers be damned. Never learned how to operate the damn things in the first place and removing them and making more space for sorting tables and dead letter boxes will be just fine.

San Diego Stars win Under-12 AAU title

by Greg Eichelberger

For three East County youngsters, this summer's Little League wars just weren't enough. They went all the way to Minnesota to win the 1998 National Amateur Athletic Union (AAU) 12-and-under championship.

Nine consecutive wins, including triumphs over teams from North Carolina, Iowa, Nevada, Minnesota, Alabama, Florida, Georgia and Virginia, gave the San Diego Stars the crown.

The Stars finished third (as 11-year-olds at Disney World) last season.

Zachary Robinson of La Mesa, who just turned 13, Matt Bush (El Cajon) and Adam Katz (Spring Valley), both 12, were a big part of that title run.

Robinson, in fact, had one of the best tournaments of anyone in the country. Out of all the players on all 48 teams taking part, he finished number one in hits and on-base percentage and has an excellent chance at being named an All-American.

He also climbed on the mound and claimed two pitching victories, a game three outing where he gave up two hits and struck out five in four innings of work, and a game eight (semi-final) battle in which he allowed only one hit, while striking out eight.

In the two games, he also collected key hits, including a 300-foot, three-run homer in the first and a game-tying RBI single in the semifinal contest.

The finals, against the Tidewater, Virginia Drifters, turned out to be rather anticlimactic, as the Stars were led by Robinson's three hits (two doubles and a single), four RBI and three runs.

"It felt great to do so well in that tournament," said Robinson, who began playing for the Rolando League as a five-year old tee-baller. He noted that there were teams from all over the country and that the competition was really intense.

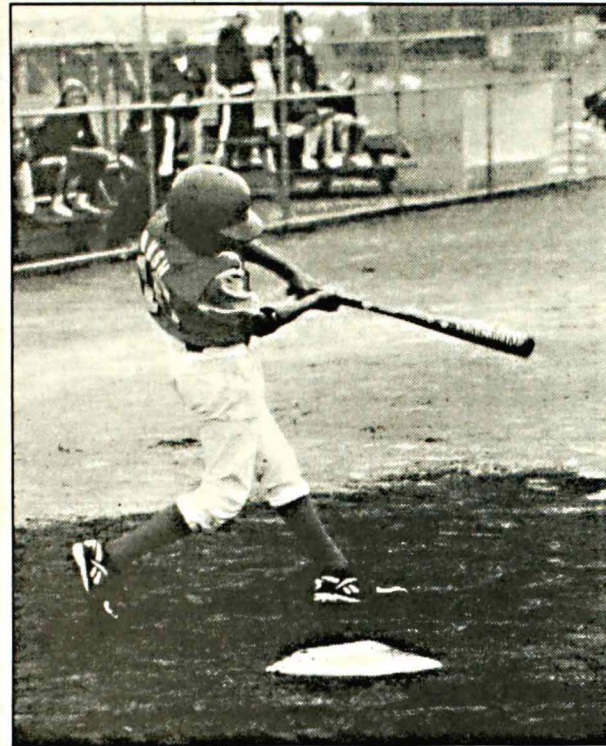

As for Bush, a student at Montgomery Middle School who began playing for Singing Hills Little League when he was 8, he has been an All-Star since the age of 9 with a forte of getting on base and stealing.

Batting well over .400 during the nine games, he amassed a home run, two triples, one double and nine singles.

In the final scrimmage, he had three hits (two bunt singles and a double), two RBI and scored three times.

As good as he was hitting the ball, however, his real power lie in his speed. In 11 tries, he stole 10 bases (and was picked off once), getting in position to score over a dozen runs.

He also excelled in center field and as a defensive shortstop. Bush, a member of the team that finished third last year, was excited about this year's run, said, "It was probably one of the best feelings that I had in the world," he said. "It was nice to win it all after what happened in Florida."

Bush plans to continue playing with the Stars and one day be a part of the Granite Hills squad.

The other local boy, Katz, was used mostly as a utility outfielder, but as a pinch-hitter in the last contest, he was one-for-one (a two-bagger) and a run batted in.

Sports Notes

La Mesa resident wins four golds

Taking four gold medals at the VII Masters World Swimming Champions in Morocco, 70-year-old Bill Phillips was among those honored by the San Diego Hall of Champions as Amateur Stars of the Month for July.

Giles named pro athlete of month

Cleveland Indians outfielder Brian Giles, a graduate of Granite Hills High School, was among those named as pro athletes of month for July.

During that month, Giles hit .348 (24 - 69), drove in 14 runs and hit three homeruns.

Others named were former Patrick Henry player Eric Karros (Dodgers 1st base) and Padres' pitchers Andy Ashby, Kevin Brown, Joey Hamilton and Trevor Hoffman.

Pro soccer team team to hold tryouts in El Cajon

The Parkway Sports Center in El Cajon will be the site of tryouts for the Kansas City Attack Aug. 24 and 25. The National Professional Soccer League (NPSL) team is sending coach and general manager Zoran Savic to the El Cajon facility to seek new talent from the San Diego area.

"What they're looking for are younger professional players who are on their way up, said Ron Pennock, owner of the Parkway Sports Center. "They realize that San Diego has a lot of current and former professional players coming out of the area."

Currently the only San Diego player on the two-time NPSL champions is Wes Wade, who played two years for the El Cajon Hotspurs Soccer Club.

Pennock, who coached the Hotspurs for 22 years, notes that a couple of former Hotspurs players are on Kansas City's other soccer team, the Wiz of Major League Soccer, Sean Bowers and Paul Wright, who played for the El Cajon youth club.

Tryouts will be from 10 a.m. to 1 p.m. each day. Savic is looking for four or five players who will then go to Kansas City for the team's final roster selection in October.
